

Katha Writers' Workshop

Katha Writers' Regional Workshop for two days has commenced from 26 October, 2018. A search for excellence in creative writing, Katha Utsav is designed to draw out the story teller in every child and cultivate a culture of writing among young people. Around 200 participants from various schools of the state have registered for two days session wherein through the campaign of "I Love Reading" they will exert their best to weave their own engaging stories, poems exhibiting their sensitivity to the environment around them.

The journey to the creative writing workshop has set off with the formal inauguration ceremony at the school premises. Principal, Mrs. Anubha Goyal welcomed the mentors, participants and guests on this occasion. The mentors were introduced to the audience. Dr Nilakshi Goswami, writer, critic, poet and translator and an Assistant Professor of The Assam Royal Global University, Ms Jeetumoni Basumatary, Assistant Professor, Cotton University, Sattyakee Dcom Bhuyan, the founder director of "D'Passion Collective", a theatre group and a man of many talents, Ms Merry Baruah, Associate Professor, English, Ms Rini Barman, writer and winner of Media Award for Gender Sensitivity, 2017 are the five renowned mentors who have shared their perspective of the workshop in the inaugural ceremony.

The two days' session will be a unique opportunity for the budding talents to explore and steer their thoughts and expressions under the abled guidance and thus let their imagination flow. The participants have been reported to be extremely excited and looking forward to a world of new writing possibilities.